

Getting to know your LPG Bottled Gas

Here's how they work:

LPG is taken from your main bottle, then when that runs out it switches automatically to your backup bottle so you don't run out.

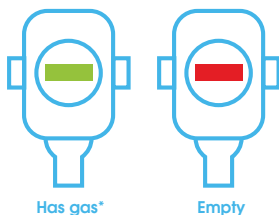

When the main bottle is empty, the regulator changes over to the back up bottle and the indicator turns red.

When to order

- Check the indicator on a regular basis. If using for heating, check every second day during winter.
- Check the indicator 12 hrs after it's turned red (without any appliances turned on).
- If it's still red after this, you need to order a refill.

*May be green or clear when there is gas.

How to order your 45kg gas bottles

- The easiest way is through our mobile App. It can be done in two easy taps and less than 10 seconds (you can download it from the Apple App Store or Google Play for free).
- A full bottle will be delivered on your next available scheduled delivery day.
- Ordering by 1pm the day before will help us deliver your bottles on time.
- If you've ordered on a public holiday, we'll start your order as soon as we're back in the office.

Important

- Don't touch the auto change regulator dial. This is changed by our driver when your new bottle is delivered.
- Both bottles must be turned on at all times, turning off the valve can cause the wrong bottle to be picked up.
